Living the Legacy of Civil Rights in Education:
Reclaiming and Reimagining Democratic Futures

The National Center for Civil and Human Rights, Atlanta, Georgia

The Curriculum and Pedagogy (C&P) Group warmly invites proposals to our annual conference, scheduled for September 25-28 (in-person) and November 15-16 (virtual). As the United States approaches a pivotal presidential election, we are reminded of the historical and ongoing struggles for civil rights and democracy. We convene in Atlanta, home to monumental moments in the Black Civil Rights Movement and a beacon for the Voting Rights Movement, for the 25th Annual Conference of the Curriculum & Pedagogy Group. With its rich history, from the Sweet Auburn Avenue to the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), Atlanta stands as a testament to the power of collective action and the enduring fight for justice. Thus, our conference theme, "Living the Legacy of Civil Rights in Education: Reclaiming and Reimagining Democratic Futures," invites educators, scholars, activists, and students to explore the intersections of curriculum, pedagogy, and democracy - and the way forward.

We invite educators, actors, and stakeholders across all levels and fields to share their views, concerns, perspectives, experiences, and knowledges about the reclamation and reimagination of democratic futures in educational spaces. We welcome proposals that center critical, anti-racist, and justice-oriented perspectives. Our conference serves as a hub for individuals committed to social change and educational empowerment, fostering enriching professional exchanges. Acknowledging the ongoing impact of COVID-19, this year we are introducing a dual format: both in-person and virtual options to cater to our diverse community. You will be able to select their preferred session format when submitting your proposals. Please note, in-person presentations will be exclusively conducted on-site. We strive to provide the best conference experience for all participants, with virtual attendance being limited. We look forward to the opportunity to connect and grow together.
